

Safety Complaints to NRC from employees & other external sources

Non-Operating U.S. Nuclear Power Reactors

January 2007 to June 2015 (8.5 years)

Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) refers to complaints as "allegations from external sources" (all sources external to the NRC). Majority of complaints are from employees & other on-site sources. These are reports of impropriety or inadequacy of NRC-related safety or regulatory concerns. Includes non-operating U.S. operating nuclear power plants & reactors with one or more allegations. One allegation report may contain multiple allegations. However, the NRC counts it as one allegation in these statistics. A complaint about a safety-conscious work environment problem is important, but a Notice of Violation cannot be issued, because there is no applicable NRC regulation. *San Onofre complaints dropped after major staff reductions.
